Notes to Table 2.

50 families, 246 people on Otter Creek/Tongue River

Little Chief's band has 20 families with 101 people.

In a letter dated Aug. 18, 1882 from George Yoakum to Pres. Arthur he states that Chief White Bull's band has settled along the Tongue River and some have built houses. He also states that some of Little Chief's band visited the Cheyenne in Aug., 1882 and now want to settle in the Tongue River valley.

APPENDIX G

In a report dated Oct. 3, 1882 from Capt. Ewers, 5th Infantry, Ft. Keogh, MT to the Asst. Adj. General, Dept. of Dakota, he states there are 10 houses, nearly completed, on or near the mouth of Otter Cr., and "so situated so each would have 160 acres".

White Bull was a famous Medicine Man (Stands In Timber and Liberty 1998: 53, 105-6).

In a letter from George Yoakum to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, dated Oct. 20 1882, he states that nearly all of Little Chief's Band have arrived and are on the Tongue River, intending to take up homesteads.

In a letter from George Yoakum to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, dated Dec. 21, 1882, he states there are 44 families, totaling 224 people of Little Chief's Band on the Tongue River. He also states there are a total of 610 Cheyenne living along Rosebud Cr. and Tongue River.

In George Milburn's April 18, 1883 report to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, he states that White Bull and his people surrendered at Ft. Keogh in 1877 and settled on Otter Cr. in June 1882. Milburn also states that Little Chief, with 10 or 12 lodges, is still at the Pine Ridge agency.

Milburn attached a rough sketch map of the Tongue River and Otter Cr. Area to his April 18, 1883 report. On this map he indicates there was a camp of 18 lodges on upper Otter Cr. (prob. At T3S R44E, sec 12 or 13) prior to March 24, 1883, but that this group relocated to near the mouth of Hanging Woman's Cr., at T5S R42E sec 25 and 26. This group was part of Little Chief's band and was led by Black Wolf, in Little Chief's absence.

In a letter from George Yoakum to Pres. Arthur, dated Dec. 9, 1884, he states that Black Kettle and Big Crow have been deceived into selling their homesteads.

George Milburn's survey list of 1883, lists this person as Spotted Wolf. His attached hand drawn map also shows Spotted Wolf's cabin. However, the GLO map in 1885 shows a cabin that corresponds with this location on Milburn's map, but the GLO indicates this is the cabin of White Wolf. There are two other Spotted Wolves listed during this time period: one is the Spotted Wolf who is with Black Wolf, down on Hanging Woman Cr., and the second is with Little Wolf's band on Muddy Cr.
